To whomsoever, it may concern

It is my honor to write this letter of recommendation for Pallavit Agarwal, whom I taught Fundamentals of Unix & C programming in the 1st semester, System Programming in 5th semester and Formal Language and Automata theory in his 6th Semester.

I was impressed with the way he approached the subjects. From the get-go Pallavit's ability to solve complex problems and his strong quantitative skills had set him apart from the rest of his peers. He had displayed an energy unlike others, where I could see that he came to the class to absorb as much as possible.

He was a student who was disciplined with strong work ethics and that showed in the work assignments that he delivered. In the labs, he remarkably solved advanced problem statements in Graphs, Trees, Minimum Spanning Trees and Network Flow Problems, and scored really good marks displaying a strong hold over the subjects.

He was ranking among the top 5% of his class and has now become a strong alumnus of the BIT's engineering fraternity by displaying strong talent in the workforce.

I strongly recommend Pallavit, for his ability to adapt to newer problems faster and his nature of contributing to his peers, for a master's from your esteemed university as I'm sure it'll help him grow in his career and life.
