Letter of Recommendation

To whomsoever, it may concern

Pallavit has been a passionate and dedicated student who stood out for his active participation in both technical and non-technical activities in the College.

Pallavit has always shown punctuality and dedication to accomplish the college tasks and assignments that were handed out by me during my sessions. He swiftly adapted what was taught in the classroom. I taught him Computer Graphics and later on Pattern Recognition during the 5th and 8th semester respectively.

I mentored Pallavit in pursuing industrial internships during college which helped him develop a unique view on industrial uses and applications of technology which he then actively shared with his peers to help upskill his surroundings. In his final year, I as a member of project evaluation panel, evaluated his final year project on “Indoor Navigation System” which was a novel and unique adaptation to extend maps into indoor spaces.

He always sought to apply his knowledge in technical forums, which I’m sure would help him throughout his life. He has a good ability to provide practical solutions to challenging problems as I came to understand through my observations over the 3 years.

As I understand now, he has gained a diversified experience since graduating from college and has been successful in creating growth in the industry. Pursuing a Masters now would definitely help him come closer to the field of research where his skill would add more value than most.

I gladly stand behind his decision of pursuing a higher education from a renowned university as yours, and become more focused in the technical domain so that his contributions become far-reaching. I’ll be proud to see him emerge as a thought-leader in the research domain.
